1. Reference requested a complete translation of a letter intercepted in a routine coverage of CARELETTA 2's mail. Because of a tremendous backlog of requests for translations of this kind, we asked that the document first be skimmed to determine the necessity for more detailed translation. We are informed the letter discusses the following subjects:

"Personal niceties; writer's financial difficulties; new position at $10 more in a drug laboratory; busy with examination period in school; clothing costs and cloth prices in New York and elsewhere; thinking about getting married."

2. Since there appears no particular significance to the above, we will not request a complete translation unless you request it.
